

Dear Clients,

I hope this letter finds you safe and well. Time is passing us by, and the global pandemic continues to restrict our every move, both as individuals and as a business. In Ghana, there were brief glimmers of hope, but they were quickly diminished by new variants of the virus leading to an increase in cases and deaths.

As the numbers have increased in Ghana, so has the emphasis on PPE and social distancing both privately and in the workplace. Breaching the protocols is now an arrestable offence and will lead to further prosecution. Below are snapshots of some of the latest news.

Minister, Mr Kwesi Adu Gyan, warned that “anyone flouting the directives will be arrested and prosecuted...”

On site, we still operate with a skeleton crew, regenerating land, stockpiling ore and making as many efficiency-led improvements as possible. Once restrictions ease and all of our staff can work safely together again, we are fully prepared to start production immediately.

Thanks to your trust and your patience, although it has been – and still is – a bumpy ride, we have become a reputable organisation that possess the tools and expertise to exceed all expectations. The pandemic has hit us very hard, but we are supremely confident that once the wheels start turning, momentum will gather very quickly.

I still spend the vast majority of my time in Ghana, ensuring we are doing everything we can to come through the storm as quickly as we are able. As always, please address any queries or discussions to info@transeco.org. If you would like to speak to me directly, please request this through the back office who will arrange a call.

Kind Regards
